

Program for the promotion of international competence and international management for Japanese in Germany or other European countries.

Objective

The internationalisation of industry requires Japanese employees to have more and more international experience. This programme is designed to promote international competence by offering an extensive preparation seminar in international business skills followed by practical training in an international company in Germany.

The program brings together delegates from different industries and different professional backgrounds. Former participants very much appreciated having the business seminar and the workshops together with delegates from different companies as this way they inspired and enriched each other with different ways of thinking and approaches to certain business situations.

Feedback

The seminar provides an overall summary of international management skills in a short term - Participant
This course is not too academic but very practical - Participant
I was inspired in a lot of aspects during the seminar, by the trainer but also by the other trainees - Participant
By knowing other company members we realized that (even though we were all Japanese) we have completely different way of thinking and culture - Participant
The seminar coach is very enthusiastic, there is a lot of group work and role plays which is very effective to understand the theory and how to use it in practice - Participant
This program is a good preparation for those who will have business relations with foreigners - Participant
The comparisons between UK, Germany and Japan in the seminar are very useful and increased my awareness as until now I knew Europe only from my colleagues in Germany - Participant
The workshop increased my awareness that in European thinking it is important to have an own opinion - whether it is correct or not - Participant
Not only the seminar but also the daily life in Berlin helped me to understand the European/German way of thinking - Participant
After this workshop I am aware of the fact that every nationality is individual and the way of interaction has to be adjusted to these differences - Participant
